Blind Applying in a nutshell:

- Top employers offer secret opportunities all over the world
- Students from every field and university apply with only their CV/résumé
- Selected students can end up anywhere in the world, with their traveling & housing costs covered
- Applicants also receive personalized opportunities and news from the partaking employers

What is happening now?

Your students can sign up from October 26 until December 7, 2015. All participating employers will be revealed on October 26th. In the meantime, students can guess who the employers are, by following our #GuessTheEmployer contest.

More than an internship – a career adventure!

- All partaking companies offer one internship each
- All enrolled students can apply, regardless of their subject field or how far they are in their studies
- Out of all applicants, each company selects one candidate for their secret internship
- The students don't know which internship belongs to which company – this is the big surprise
- While the champions are doing their internship, they blog about their experience and share their stories with the world

The idea was initiated by Deutsche Telekom in 2013 and is powered by Entrypark. This is the third year we are running the campaign!

What makes Blind Applying different?

- Application is easy. Students apply with only their CVs/résumés! No cover letter needed
- Blind Applying internships are international – a real career adventure is waiting for the champions
- The outcome might be surprising! Blind Applying companies are well known employers, the internships they offer might not be
- All internships are paid. The intern's traveling and housing costs are covered by the company
- Applicants who are not selected receive personalized opportunities and news from the partaking employers

Frequently Asked Questions

How long is the internship?

These are paid internships of 3 months minimum. Exact starting date & duration are decided between the student and employer.

How is the selection made?

The candidates are shortlisted based on the qualifications (field, languages, previous experience), as needed for each internship. The candidate's experiences and interests are taken into account, so that they are matched with opportunities interesting for them. Out of the shortlisted candidates, the employers choose which candidates to interview and the recruiting process continues as usual.

Are the internships related to the students' field of study?

The internship is relevant to the student's skills and interests. Sometimes, the internship is not directly related to a student's field of study, but if a student gets an offer and wants to try something different, it's up to them.

Are students obliged to accept an internship offer?

Students are not obliged to take on any offer or interview. We always look to match students with suitable companies and opportunities, but it's up to the student to decide.

Can recent graduates take part?

Some employers require the intern to be enrolled for legal reasons. If a company can employ fresh graduates for the internship, we are more than happy to match them with suitable candidates.

What other opportunities are there besides the Blind Applying internships?

All applicants have the opportunity to receive personalized opportunities and news from the partaking employers, based on their profiles. It is our goal to let applicants know of as many new, global opportunities the employers are offering as possible.
